Pozorne si prečítaj text a potom rozhodni, či vety v tabuľke na prvej strane písomnej skúšky sú pravdivé (T- true) alebo nepravdivé (F-false).

Svoje rozhodnutie napíš do stĺpika Tvoja odpoveď písmenom T alebo F. Ak sa pomýliš alebo zmeníš názor, písmeno prečiarkni a napíš druhé.

Facebook

Do you use any of the social networking websites which are so popular these days, the places where you can connect up with friends and relatives and meet people who share the same interests as you?

If you are younger, you may use MySpace, young adults are more likely to be found on Facebook and busy professionals may prefer something like LinkedIn, where they can find former or present colleagues or new business partners.

But at least two of these sites have one thing in common: apart from being social spaces where you can meet and chat to people, share photos and other things, they've all added new verbs and nouns to the language in the past couple of years.

Let's take a look at some examples. You can facebook your holiday photos (upload them to your Facebook page), facebook someone to see who they are (look him up in Facebook), facebook someone about a party (contact someone through their Facebook page) and ask permission to facebook someone (add them as a Facebook friend).

As you can see, 'facebook' is a pretty versatile word, and you could say the same about 'myspace', which you will find being used in much the same way all over the Net. LinkedIn (being a more adult, professional community) has not been used in the same way. While you're 'facebooking' or 'myspacing', you may also find yourself 'commenting' (writing a comment on someone's Facebook or MySpace page), as in this example: 'I commented Mary that she should come to the pub on Saturday and she commented me that she couldn't because she was going away for the weekend.'
